O'Higgins Meets Challenge of Labor and Wins by 51 to 24.

STOPS PICKETING

Right of Postal Clerks to Quit Government Service Denied.

DUBLIN Sept. 12 (by courier to Belfast).—The new Irish govern-ment has passed the first test with flying colors and emerged immense-ly strengthened in public estimation. It has proved that it is not only determined to suppress political rebellion but also that it is determined to place Ireland in the raphy. ranks of the sane, conservative states of the world.

Credit for this victory is due Credit for this victor, is the courage and determination of Kevin O'Higgins, newly appointed minister of home affairs. O'Higgins found himself faced on the first day of office with a general strike againgt of postal workers against scaling wages from the war-time standing Challenged by Labor Party.

O'Higgins at once issued a notice that the government could not rec-ognize the rights of civil servants to strice and that the picketing ould not be allowed and that all the force of the state would be used to protect the men who wanted to work. This attitude was immediate challenged in the new parliament by the labor party. moved that the Dail Eireann which moved that the Dan repudiate this prociamation of the young minister.
